

EXPLOSION IN LAKE TUNNEL KILLS SCORE

WORKS LABORERS DIE IN CAVE-IN UNDER LAKE ERIE.

RESCUE PARTY TRAPPED

Ten Members of Two Rescue Parties Perish From Gas Fumes in Effort to Reach Scene of Accident.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Cleveland, July 25.—Twenty-two men are dead and half a dozen others dying as the result of an explosion of gas in a water works tunnel five miles from shore underneath Lake Erie late last night.

The dead include workmen who were trapped in the tunnel when gas exploded and members of two rescue parties who attempted to save the men first caught.

Rescuers working with oxygen helmets had brought eight bodies from the tunnel. No more have been found alive. A number of bodies in the morgue is very few.

Of the dead eleven were in the rescue party. The first rescue party consisted of seven men; four of them perished and three were rescued. The second rescue party consisted of eleven men. Six of these lost their lives and five escaped.

The first rescue party accomplished nothing. The second saved one of the first party. No one has yet rescued any of the original eleven caught in the tunnel.

Superintendent May Die.
A third rescue party entered the tunnel at 8:30 and brought out alive Gustav Charles Van Deuzen, superintendent of the water works construction, who had headed the second rescue party. Van Deuzen may die from his experiences.

One body was also brought out by the third rescue party. This was a member of the second rescue crew. It had been supposed that Van Deuzen had perished.

The tragic fate of the rescuers in the first and second instances was due to the fact that they were without oxygen helmets. Of those rescued who afterwards died, no pulmonary were at hand to resuscitate them.

Mayor Harry L. Davis today promised to conduct an investigation into this shortage of oxygen helmets as well as into the catastrophe itself. The third party was equipped with helmets and nearly eleven hours had elapsed since the explosion.

Cause Not Yet Explained.
The cause of the explosion has not yet been ascertained. It is supposed some workmen struck a pocket of gas with a pick and possibly gas collected in the tunnel and became ignited by an electric spark. The tunnel was equipped with electric driven pumps.

The party of eleven workmen were caught by the explosion entered the tunnel at eight o'clock last night. The work had been carried on in three shifts. In charge of Charles Folkes as shift boss.

First intimation of the disaster came when Wm. J. Doland, locked in the air chamber at the entrance to the tunnel, heard the explosion. It was about 8:30 p. m. Doland was thrown against the door leading from the air chamber to the tunnel. This door was opened and the tunnel filled with gas. Doland was overcome by the gas and fell.

Rescue Party Overcome.
Superintendent J. Johnson summoned volunteers and led the first rescue party of volunteers into the tunnel. One hundred and twenty feet from the bottom of the shaft they began to stumble and were overcome by the gas.

Doland, who had resumed his position in the air chamber, rushed after them. He saw a flash of light in the darkness. It proved to be Johnson's head which he had fallen. Doland dragged him to the elevator and went back. Almost dead he dragged Patrick McKenna to safety. Then he collapsed.

Others from the crib took the three up the elevator and they placed aboard boats which had been attracted by the explosion.

It was two hours later that Van Deuzen, who had been summoned by Johnson, organized the second rescue party on shore and went to the crib. With him he descended into the tunnel. His men found Michael Koenig, one of the first rescue party still alive and dragging him out.

Pittsburgh Sends Rescuers.
Pittsburgh, July 25.—A party of five rescuers from the Pittsburgh Division of the American Railway Union left here today for Cleveland to assist in the rescue work in the water works tunnel. They took with them the customary equipment for rescue work, including a portable engine, a pump, and a rescue car with its entire crew.

They are from Pennsylvania to Cleveland with all possible speed. There are six engineers in the party which left here.

CRASH IN MID-AIR; AVIATORS ESCAPE

French Flyers Come Together at Height of Half Mile, Fall but Are Uninjured.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris, July 25.—Sergeants M. and W. of the French flying corps have established a new record, their machines collided at a height of 2,000 yards above the suburb of Pantin, became locked together with the crash, and landed in a tangle with part of the wreckage resting on the ground. The house and the rest upon a network of telegraph wires, while both pilots escaped without a scratch.

Neither of the heroes of this adventure were experienced aviators, which perhaps explains the collision, but now they claim to be "vaccinated" and demand the privilege of going to the front.

"Vaccinated" in aviation parlance means that the pilot has had his in-flight accident and has come out of it all pockets empty. Aviation accidents are so seldom anything else than fatal.

A man who has been "vaccinated" in the aviation is called in French a "veinard"—a "lucky dog." It may go on with his dangerous career with tranquil mind; with ordinary precaution he may fear no disaster.

For beginners such as were Sergeants M. and W. the vaccination with the great event. Once inoculated with the virus of luck, they are recognized as full-fledged flyers.

RELEASE 10,000 FIREFLIES TO SALUTE CHINESE EMPEROR

Tokyo, July 25.—Foreigners witnessed an unusual and beautiful scene this month when 10,000 fireflies were released at night by school children before the Imperial Palace in celebration of the emperor.

The children gathered in the one of the suburbs, enclosed them in tiny wooden cages and marched to the palace. At 8 o'clock the insects were set free, flying over the palace—a cloud of scintillating spots of fire. From the ancient palace rampart a court official acknowledged the tribute by waving a paper lantern bearing the imperial crest.

KANSAS CITY YOUTH KILLS HIS BRIDE OF THREE MONTHS

Kansas City, Mo., July 25.—Paul Weaver, twenty-three years old, florist, shot and killed his bride of three months, today in a laundry office in this city. The couple had been married three months and had a domestic difficulties had separated them. Weaver then shot himself, his body falling across hers.

U. S. ANTI-CAMPAIGN EXPENDITURES BILL MAY HAVE 1916 BLOW

Bill Already Passed House and Is Similar to Wisconsin Corrupt Practices Act.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, July 25.—A corrupt practices bill introduced by Senator Owen of Oklahoma placing rigid restrictions on money spending by candidates for office has run the house of the senate successfully, and with the administration's solid support, is waiting today to be passed in the senate.

It is today expected for this year's presidential and congressional election. You can't buy a cigar for an old-time constituent under that bill, asserted an indignant house member as the measure was about to pass there. The friends declare it makes slush-funds a dead-end, and expenditures out of the reach of the ordinary man, impossible.

Under penalty of a fine up to $20,000, imprisonment of not less than one year, and in the case of a candidate for office illegally elected under provisions—disqualification for his office—the bill forbids candidates to contribute to the campaign. It also forbids expenditures other than for postage, literature, and other specified items; corporations or their officers; importing money into a congressional district to affect the congressional election; newspapers to run "puffs" without labeling them "paid ads"; withdrawal of a political stand; a newspaper because of a political stand. A president may not have more than $50,000 spent to obtain his nomination; a vice president is limited to $25,000. A senator may spend $5,000 for nomination or election; a congressman $2,500.

In addition, the national committee may not spend $400,000 for the presidential tickets; and the national congressional committee the same amount. National officers are criminally liable if they do not.

No money over $50 may be spent by any individual for a candidate, according to the bill. When individuals organize to elect a candidate, they must register with the clerk of the house of representatives, keep a public account of all funds received and paid out, and twice before and after the election file these expense accounts at Washington.

The total any man may spend, whether as an individual or as a club member, or both, is $15,000. The fine and imprisonment clauses are not discretionary with the court. Anyone found guilty must be imprisoned one year. Convicted candidates must resign the places to which they were illegally elected.

Witnesses who testify for the state are granted full immunity, except for perjury committed on the stand. For beginners such as were Sergeants M. and W. the vaccination with the great event. Once inoculated with the virus of luck, they are recognized as full-fledged flyers.

THREE MEN STRUCK BY FREIGHT TRAIN

One Dead, One Dying at Chippewa Falls—Aged Grand Rapids Farmer Is Killed.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Chippewa Falls, Wis., July 25.—Lester Ruchalski, 22 years old, was killed, Edward Remick, aged 22, head crushed, and will die, and William Ruchalski, aged 18, is badly bruised as the result of having been struck by a freight train here last night.

All were from Dixon City, Ill., and were sitting in a row on the railroad track waiting for a freight train to come along that they might board it on their way home.

They dozed and sat with their faces in their hands as the train approached. The first two boys were struck and fatally injured and the third was killed. The bodies of the other two pushed him out of danger as they were thrown from the track.

Aged Farmer Killed.
Grand Rapids, Wis., July 25.—Charles Staefel, 77, well known farmer in this section of the state, was killed this noon by a train on the Milwaukee road near here as he attempted to cross the track not noticing the train approaching.

SUBMARINE TO SAIL AT THE PROPER TIME

Deutschland Will Leave Baltimore in Due Season Captain Koenig Explains—Feels No Uneasiness.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Baltimore, July 25.—"Circumstances and conditions over which we have no control are keeping us in Baltimore. There is no danger of alarm from our sources. At the proper time we will get away. There is a time for everything. Thus spoke Captain Paul Koenig, commander of the German submarine Deutschland, explaining his delay in Baltimore today when asked what was delaying his sailing.

What the conditions and circumstances are Captain Koenig would not say. He merely said that he had asked if he felt a sense of uneasiness as the time drew nearer for his departure on his perilous voyage.

"What is there to fear?" he replied. "The ocean is big and deep. Plan to Follow U-Boat."

Norfolk, Va., July 25.—All kinds of small craft were made ready today here and in Hampton Roads to take the trail of the German submarine Deutschland when she comes down from Baltimore for her dash to the sea.

It has been rumored that a flotilla of armed German submarines is on the way to attack the British and French cruisers which will be in the course of this submarine attack. The fact does not curb the interest taken.

LA FOLLETTE SHUNS CHANCE FOR DEBATE

Turns Down Suggestion of Racine Editor to Meet His Opponent in For-Ensic Clash.

JEFFRIS MOST WILLING

Janesville Candidate for United States Senate Is Ready to Cancel Previous Engagements to Enter Joint Discussion.

M. G. Jeffris of this city, republican candidate for the United States senate, is ready to meet Senator Robert M. La Follette, his opponent at the September primaries, in a joint debate to be held at such place or places and upon such date or dates as may be convenient. Senator La Follette, however, absolutely declines any such opportunity.

The suggestion of a joint debate was made by F. R. Starbuck of the Racine Journal-News and letters of invitation were sent to both Jeffris and La Follette. The senator's reply was brief and absolute in its refusal. He will not divide time on the stump with any one. La Follette's letter follows:

Washington, D. C., July 23, 1916.
"Mr. F. R. Starbuck,
"Journal Printing Co.,
"Racine, Wisconsin.
"Dear Mr. Starbuck:—
I have your letter of July 17th received. I have no time to spare for a stump with any one. I shall not do so in this campaign.

Very respectfully yours,
"ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE."

Jeffris writes willingness. Malcolm G. Jeffris expressed his willingness to meet the senator and gives his views in regard to such a meeting and the issues this fall as follows:

"Janesville, Wis., July 20, 1916.
"Mr. F. R. Starbuck,
"Care Journal Printing Co.,
"Racine, Wisconsin.
"Dear Mr. Starbuck:—
Yours of July 17th, in which you suggest a public discussion between Senator La Follette and myself upon the issues involved in the pending campaign, is received. I am pleased to comply with the suggestion and would be willing to meet Senator La Follette at Racine, on any day, or days, or places, or in any way, or manner, or at his convenience. I expect to be busy from now until the primaries, but I will make every effort to get away for the issue of the campaign.

"I believe it is fair to Senator La Follette, assuming that his only duty is the election of a man to the United States senate. He is fairly stands for sound, economic principles and a good, strong, economical government, administered for the benefit of the people of the American people.

See Chance for Racine.
"Senator La Follette has announced that 'big business' and the 'munition movement' in this country are a menace to our rights as against the world; he stands for an embargo upon the shipment of munitions of war for the purpose of maintaining our diplomatic relations; for a referendum on the question of a declaration of war; for the initiative, referendum and recall, and it might be interesting to the people of the state of Wisconsin to hear those questions discussed at a time when both sides might be present. I do not know if these things for which Senator La Follette says that he stands, and I feel that I have many good reasons for not being in them, and am willing to give my reasons. I am willing to let Senator La Follette state his reasons for which he stands, and I feel that I have many good reasons for not being in them, and am willing to give my reasons. I am willing to let Senator La Follette state his reasons for which he stands, and I feel that I have many good reasons for not being in them, and am willing to give my reasons.

Letto stated: "The protective tariff is a policy of the United States, and I believe it will never come back. In the fall of that year he voted for the repeal of the tariff bill. I do not understand he now says he will not approve of the Underwood bill, but does believe in some kind of a protective tariff. The Republican party believe in a tariff. I am willing to protect labor and capital, both of which are necessary to carry on an enterprise. Mr. La Follette expressly repudiates the protective tariff. He says it was written by Tories. The people should know where Mr. La Follette stands on the tariff.

Ready to Discuss Taxes.
"It is charged in this campaign, that through Senator La Follette's policies as related to the state of Wisconsin, taxes have been increased to an unwarranted extent, that the state government has been complicated, that there has been an enormous increase of expense, without adequate returns to the people thereof. While this question is not directly involved in the senatorial campaign, yet I am willing to take part in the discussion of the questions involved.

"Senator La Follette claims to be a Republican. I do not believe he can qualify a state. He repudiates the national convention. I am of interest to the people to know just where he does stand politically. I would be willing to take up the question of the exchange of shots by the United States senator's resignation with the people of the state of Wisconsin.

"I am at your service to follow out the suggestion contained in your letter and you may make arrangements for the convenience of Senator La Follette, hoping that it will be made, however, with as little disturbance to my plan as possible, while serving Senator La Follette's every convenience. I hope that Senator La Follette will again be able to spare the time from his senatorial duties, as he did in the past, and that he will not prevent him from taking advantage of so good an opportunity to express his views to the voters of Wisconsin. The people will have the opportunity to compare our views.

"Very truly yours,
"M. G. JEFFRIS."

POLES SEND WILSON MESSAGE OF THANKS

Express Gratitude to American President for His Efforts in Poland's Behalf.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
The Hague, July 25.—The Polish Bureau here today informed the Associated Press that the Polish delegates to the congress of the national assembly at Lucerne, Switzerland, had sent a cablegram to President Wilson thanking the American nation for the action begun to succor the economic condition in Poland and hoping that the sacred watchword of liberty for Poland will find a ready echo in America.

KAISER IN SPEECH AT FRONT STIRS UP HATE FOR ENGLAND

England Plots to Destroy Germany and Is Responsible for the War, Emperor Tells His Men.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, July 25.—A dispatch from Bern by way of Montpelier, France, given out today by the wireless press, says: "Another speech by Emperor William during his recent visit to the Somme front is being discussed in Berlin. The Emperor said: 'Comrades, it is our special privilege to fight against the English, a nation that has sworn to destroy Germany. The English built up during the years before the war a combination of countries which at a given signal fell upon us, the most peaceful and peace-loving people in the world.'

"The English led us to believe they were our friends when they were actually plotting our destruction. English diplomacy brought about the war, and now an English offensive is intended to carry its operations to our soil, into our towns and villages to the peril and undoing of our helpless men and children. 'Our duty is to break the English offensive, to prove once more that Germany is invincible and not renege to despair to the relentless enemies of our country so that they will sue for peace on terms honorable and profitable to Germany.'

"From conservative circles in Berlin comes the announcement that when the Reichstag reassembles in autumn an interpolation will be addressed to the imperial chancellor asking why the fiery speeches of the Emperor at the front are withheld from general publication."

POZIERES VILLAGE TAKEN BY BRITISH

Important Contested Position in Somme Fighting Now Occupied by British Forces—Slaves Gain in East.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, July 25.—British troops have captured the greater part of the village of Pozieres, according to an official statement today.

Berlin, July 25.—An English-French counter-attack yesterday north of the river Somme in France, says the official dispatch today, broke down.

Russian troops succeeded in penetrating the German front line on a small part of the front, the German troops under General Von Linsingen giving way, according to an official statement today.

Italians Win Success.
Rome, July 25.—Italian troops have captured Monte Ciandone on the Austrians, says an official statement today.

French Lines Kept Busy.
Paris, July 25.—Between the Oise and the Aisne several German patrols were dispersed near Thiepval. On the left bank of the Pume, in the Verdun region, there was a grenade attack. On Hill 304, on the right bank of the Pume, a violent cannon-firing was in progress, and at La Fere and Fleury. A German attack on the French position at Baschwiller, in Alsace, is claimed to have failed, but Lieutenant Nungesser of the French aviation corps brought down his tenth aeroplane.

On the south bank of the Somme yesterday evening French troops captured a block house of the Germans and drove the Germans out of trenches north of Verdunville, says the French official statement issued this afternoon.

ISSUE OF SOLDIERS VOTING UNDECIDED

In Case Attorney General Owen Decides They Cannot Vote by Mail Special Session.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison, July 25.—Attorney General Owen is still wrestling with the legal question placed before him by Governor Philipp as to whether the state troops now on the Mexican border can vote under the voting by mail law. The attorney general says he hoped to have the question solved within a day or two.

He refused to say whether it would be favorable or not. The general impression, however, that the option will be unfavorable and that the attorney general will hold that the troops will not be able to vote under the voting by mail law.

It is practically certain that Governor Philipp will call a special session of the legislature as soon as he can get an opinion from the attorney general holding that the troops cannot vote.

WILL PAY FARES OF STATE TROOPS

Married Men Discharged on Border Will Have Fares Paid to Their Homes.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Sheboygan, Wis., July 25.—Word from the married men in "C" company second Wisconsin Infantry at Camp Wilson, Tex., last night stated they had been a misunderstanding and that they would not be compelled to pay their own fares home. A message from Senator Burke stated that the government allows every guard soldier railway fare at the rate of 34 cents per mile from the point where he is discharged to his home. That will pay the fare and provide fund for meals enroute.

STRIKERS ORDERED TO STOP PICKETING

District Attorney at Appleton Orders Strikers to Cease Picketing.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Appleton, Wis., July 25.—District Attorney Cullin has issued the statement that picketing by strikers at the Inter Lake Pulp and Paper Mills and the Riverside Paper Mills must cease, being prohibited by the Wisconsin statutes, which state that no workman is to go to and from work while going to and from work. There have been several assaults here which strikers are alleged to have been implicated in, and the statute will be enforced according to the district attorney.

INQUEST IS HELD FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Girl Killed While Buggy Riding With Boy—Inquest Is Held Today.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Olney, Ill., July 25.—An inquest was held today in the death of Elizabeth Ratzliff, seventeen-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, at Olney, Friday night while buggy riding with Roy Hintershler, son of a well-to-do farmer of Olney.

The girl was killed when the buggy was struck by a car. The inquest was held at the Olney jail today.

WILSON INSISTS ON A CHILD LABOR LAW

Will Also Ask for Federal Employment Compensation Act at This Session of Congress.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, July 25.—President Wilson let it be known today that he will insist upon the child labor and federal employment compensation bill being taken care of by Congress at the present session.

A favorable committee report was filed in the Senate today on the compensation bill which passed the house. A cause for democratic senators has been called for tonight to include the child labor bill in this session's program.

GUARD PANAMA ROUTE

Harbors of St. Thomas and St. Croix Are of First Importance to American Navy—Denmark Approves Treaty.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, D. C., July 25.—Official announcement was made at the White House today that negotiations have practically been completed for the purchase of the Danish West Indies by the United States from Denmark for $25,000,000. A treaty closing the transaction probably will be signed today and sent to the senate.

Of Strategic Importance.
The three islands of the Danish West Indies—St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John—lie due east of Porto Rico and their value to the United States is considerable from a military point of view.

The harbors of St. Croix and St. Thomas are of first importance to the American navy, and St. Thomas itself is in the line of shipping from Europe to the Panama canal.

Important German, French and English mail companies have coaling stations there.

While details of the treaty were not given out, it is understood that the United States would not come into complete possession of the islands.

Denmark Approves Treaty.
Word has been received from Denmark that the treaty is practically certain of being ratified by the Danish parliament.

Charmian Stone of the senate foreign relations committee saw President Wilson today, but said the affair was not discussed. Of the purchase of the islands he knew nothing, he said.

It is understood the government hopes the treaty will be ratified during the present session of congress.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

CHAPTER 28.
The infantile paralysis epidemic of 1916 presented so many symptoms similar to the symptoms of pigeons and chickens suffering from polyneuritis as a result of feeding upon de-natured and demineralized grain foods, such as white flour and commercial cornmeal, that Professor Simon Brauch called the phenomenon to the attention of the Health Commissioner of the City of New York. "Demineralized foods," he said, "constitute the chief cause of infantile paralysis." The substance of Professor Brauch's conclusions.

In June, 1916, an epidemic of infantile paralysis broke out in Brooklyn, N. Y.

The disease spread so rapidly that after 187 deaths had been reported in New York city and hundreds of cases discovered in eleven states and Canada, Health Commissioner Haven Emerson announced that he would appeal to the National Red Cross for help.

Three thousand three hundred physicians and nurses were put to work. The health department informed the public that the United States public health service and the Rockefeller health service would begin active work at once to combat the scourge.

Fifty-five playgrounds were ordered closed. Every child's reading room in Manhattan and Brooklyn was closed. Sunday schools were closed.

Dr. Lewis C. Ager called for public subscriptions to buy braces and other supporting devices for victims of the disease.

At the Kingston Avenue hospital in Brooklyn a hundred bandaged frames, plaster of paris bandages and a mass of braces were called for.

"Of the 200 children with infantile paralysis in the Kingston Avenue hospital," said Dr. Ager, "75 per cent will have legs or arms badly deformed."

Extra calls were sent out for ambulances. The health department commandeered eleven automobiles and sent them to the hospital in order to respond to the frantic appeals.

Eminent scientists publicly announced that they did not know the reason for the spread of the disease nor did they understand why children presented so little resistance to it.

Then came this remarkable statement, July 9, 1916, from Prof. Simon Brauch, who diagnosed the first recorded case of perforating appendicitis successfully operated on and who is one of the foremost members of the American medical profession.

The obscurest of the origin of infantile paralysis and the mode of diffusion, together with its fatality and crippling results, strikes terror into the hearts of the people to an extent unknown since the shotgun quarantining of yellow fever," declares Prof. Brauch.

"Just as the latter gave way to an enlightened public sentiment due to the discovery that the fatal disease is not due to 'foetor' (bad odor), and is not communicable by contact with supposed carriers, but to inoculation by a certain kind of mosquito, so will the present unreasoning apprehension disappear when the real cause of infantile paralysis is discovered."

For several months I have watched the scientific development of the malady influence other essential elements of nutrition. It is enabled to publish in the weekly reports of the United States public health service.

Q.—Will you kindly inform me if Kellogg's Toasted Wheat Biscuits are wholesome and clean, and contain all the nutrients present in entire wheat.

A.—Kellogg's Toasted Wheat Biscuits are wholesome and clean, and contain all the nutrients present in entire wheat.

Q.—Does lettuce contain opium?

A.—Lettuce does not contain opium. It does contain, however, some very valuable nutrients, of which every one would do well to avail himself. As a calcium and iron carrier lettuce is invaluable.

Q.—What am I to understand by "there is more tonmyrot written about protein than any other food matter?"

A.—If the body is properly nourished, it is supplied with and avails itself of all the necessary minerals, vitamins and other essential elements of nutrition. It is enabled to transform protein into muscle fibre.

Protein, however, without the nourishing substances found in whole grain and cereals not only avails nothing but actually becomes a burden.

Protein poisoning is a common occurrence. Men have been so frequently told that protein is the most necessary substance entering into their food supply that they have gone crazy about it.

There are now actually two "scientific" schools of protein philosophy. One teaches the "low protein" diet. The other teaches the "high protein" diet.

Neither of them even hints at the fact that all natural foods contain just as much protein as they should contain, no more, no less.

They seem to be satisfied that the moisture content of water is about right. Beyond that they are at war. The whole mess is a mass of tommyrot.

Q.—What do you mean by "lime salts?" I cannot find such a classification among the various elements which compose the human body.

A.—The words lime and calcium are used interchangeably. They both refer to precisely the same thing. Calcium is more scientific and is generally used instead of lime. Without calcium, or lime, we would have no coagulate of blood, the normal alkalinity of the internal secretions would not be maintained; the body would lose its resistance; man would become a gelatinous mass, shapeless, motionless, inert. Yes, you will find lime classified among the various elements which compose the human body.

together with articles in the medical journals on beriberi and pellagra. Pigeons fed on polished rice are afflicted by beriberi technically called polyneuritis, which begins with loss of weight and ends fatally. Dr. Siden found that pigeons fed on this exclusive diet did not get paralyzed (within a few hours) as pigeons fed on a mixture of whole grain and polished rice. If they were given also some other useful food products (rich in mineral salts) from the brewery waste which are usually wasted. He has also shown that if this waste material be given to a pigeon already paralyzed it will recover within an hour and at all appearances it will be normal in a few hours.

"There is a striking similarity in some of the causes predisposing to infantile paralysis and beriberi. Both occur chiefly in overcrowded localities, in hot weather, and more among males than females. Both are accompanied by fever and paralysis, and both are extremely fatal. Both have prevailed as epidemics and their fatality has caused terror and despair."

"Beriberi was formerly regarded as an infectious disease from undiscovered causes, but is now known to be due chiefly if not solely to absence of vitamins in the diet of the Japanese and others, as in a reported epidemic among Norwegian fishermen."

"Many infantile paralysis cases have included thus far the most searching investigations, be likewise traceable to some defect in diet that may be discovered by the able officers actively engaged in research? I regard this result as probable."

"We have a clue to the possibilities in this direction by the report of the United States public health service of April 17, 1916, on bread as food, in which the fact is clearly brought out that the fine roller milled wheat flour is devoid of vitamins, and that owing to the use of baking powders containing bicarbonate of soda the vitamins in other foods are likely to be destroyed."

In a study of pellagra in South Carolina, Voeghtlin regards this malady as somewhat related to beriberi. He found that this disease prevailed in the factory districts, where people eat mostly fat bacon, corn and soda raised biscuits or corn bread made of highly milled corn, while in the backwoods where coarsely milled grain is used pellagra is rare.

"The high cost of vitamin-containing foods, like eggs, milk and meats, makes it impossible for these poor people to protect themselves against the loss of vitamins in purchased cereal foods."

"It may be of interest to ascertain if infantile paralysis has been more prevalent since 1873, when the first milling processes were invented, omitted to mention as proof of similarity of causes that the experiments made on pigeons have been confirmed in chickens which fed on whole corn remain healthy, while the same fowls fed on highly milled cornmeal are affected with paralysis."

These briefly stated scientific facts lead me to believe that close scrutiny of the food of the children afflicted may lead to the discovery of a dietetic cause of infantile paralysis. Voeghtlin correctly concludes his article that "studying the etiology (causes) of any disease which is assumed to be of dietary origin, it is essential to pay careful attention to what might appear on superficial examination as trivial details."

Q.—Will you tell us how much nourishment there is in cream of wheat and wheatena?

A.—Cream of wheat and wheatena, as well as farina, are taken from the least nutritious portion of the wheat kernel. All three products are like white flour, almost entirely free from the essential minerals and vitamins.

Cream of wheat, wheatena, farina, and white bread head the list of foods that have been refined and demineralized foods.

Q.—Will you kindly inform me if Kellogg's Toasted Wheat Biscuits are wholesome and clean?

A.—Kellogg's Toasted Wheat Biscuits are wholesome and clean, and contain all the nutrients present in entire wheat.

SENATOR CUNNINGHAM.

Four years ago Lawrence E. Cunningham of Beloit was nominated and elected state senator for the twenty-second state senatorial district, comprising Rock and Walworth counties. During his term as a member Senator Cunningham has proven his worth as a law-maker and his work in behalf of his constituents has been most pronounced. It was due to his energy that the first legislation in the United States in behalf of the farmers suffering losses from the hoof and mouth disease, was passed by the Wisconsin legislature and by the method under which the disease was stamped out. His tuberculosis bill has also been wide in its scope. Another important measure which he has fathered was the amendment to the state income tax law which gave the board of review the power to review the taxes of towns, villages and cities the right to readjust taxes. His home for crippled children, where the unfortunate were given an equal opportunity, is worth in itself the support of citizens generally. Rural schools and election laws were also pet hobbies of Senator Cunningham to the decided advantage of the public and taxpayer. The fact that Senator Cunningham has announced his decision to again become a candidate and that his papers are now being circulated, brings into prominence the efforts he has made in behalf of his constituents. He has made a most able state representative and doubtless will be re-nominated and elected without serious opposition.

A TRUE CHAUTAUAQUAN.

Are you a loyal Chautauquan? If not, why not? You should realize that the time is short to enjoy the benefits to be derived from the program that is being given out of the grounds of the association. It is arranged to meet the demands of yourself and every citizen who loves good, enjoyable entertainment at a minimum cost.

It is not a money-making scheme but one in which business men have interested themselves so that the public can reap the benefits. If you do not have a season ticket, purchase regular admission tickets, but be sure and avail yourself of the rare opportunity offered to enjoy an afternoon or evening's entertainment at a minimum cost.

The true Chautauquans take their lunch with them so as not to miss one iota of the enjoyment of the entertainment and varied program. They do not stop at home for meals but camp as it were on the grounds, from the time the program starts until it ends in the evening. Are you a true Chautauquan?

HUGHES VS. WILSON.

The coming campaign is likely to prove, in substance if not in form, a joint debate between the two candidates," says Collier. "For this debate Mr. Hughes is better equipped and in better shape. Physically he is in the pink of condition, and mentally he is at the highest point of development of his remarkable powers. Not only by temperament and condition is Mr. Hughes adapted to the aggressive, by the advantage of position he will have the same role. Mr. Wilson will be on the defensive. The administration's record during the four years will be a chief part of the issues of the campaign. Mr. Wilson will be on guard, Mr. Hughes attacking. During the last few years Mr. Hughes has not been in the limelight, making a record. He has had the benefit of the quiet of the bench instead of the turmoil which Wilson has had to endure. It is likely that as young men, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes had much the same kind of minds, but their careers have been very different. The exercise of Mr. Wilson's mind has been largely in college classrooms. His utterances have been passed out to young men who had neither the maturity nor the position to argue or to give his mind that clash and opposition which would have been good for its development. Mr. Hughes' mind, on the other hand, has constantly come into contact with opposition and has at every turn been tested by the concrete. While Mr. Wilson was a teacher in college, Mr. Hughes was a jury lawyer handling the most concrete and complex of business problems. As investigator of the insurance companies Mr. Hughes was compelled to deal with the concrete in the most exact and trying form. As the most exact and today, Mr. Wilson's weakness is that his mind still tends to deal with the theoretical and the abstract. In the coming joint debate Mr. Hughes should make the better impression. When he gets under way the public will find all of his moves made with the same decision and effectiveness that characterized his letter of acceptance."

THE BULLETIN.

"The Bulletin," which is the political dope-sheet issued by the democratic national committee for the guidance of democratic editors, carries this line: "Editors are invited to submit suggestions for the improvement of The Bulletin." We have one suggestion to make. It is that the "Bulletin" discard the policy of the administration to try to fool somebody. For instance, in the "Bulletin" of May 15, there is an article headed, "The Republican Platform," which is a pure fake. It was written by some democratic smart-Aleck and printed in a style to make people believe that it is the platform of the republican party for 1916. It will be a dull man, indeed, who is deceived by such practices—but we imagine that most readers of the "Bulletin" and of the papers which are stimulated by it, are not over bright, anyway. Nevertheless, it is well to avoid even the appearance of evil—and we make this suggestion to the compilers of the "Bulletin" in all seriousness.

THE HOME COMING.

If you have not sent in the names of those friends of yours, those former residents that perhaps someone else has forgotten, to be invited to the Home Coming, do not fail to do so at once. The letters are still going out and no one who ever lived in Janesville should be neglected. There are lots of former residents, not names and sons and daughters, perhaps, but residents of Janesville for a year or two, that would be delighted to return if they knew of this event. Do not fail to have them written to. If you, as an individual committee of one, do not write them, hand their names in to the secretary of the Commercial club that they may receive a formal invitation. Delays are dangerous so do it at once before you forget it. This home-coming can only be made a success by the concerted efforts of the citizens generally.

ONCE UPON A TIME.

Champ Clark declares that no political party will ever dare go to the income tax. Yet the republican party did that very thing once upon a time. There was an income tax levied during the civil war—levied for the purpose of helping to pay the expenses of a war of our own and not for the purpose of covering up defective fiscal legislation. When the war was over—our own war again he remarked—the republican party removed the income tax, and it was not again imposed until a democratic administration found it necessary as first aid to an injured treasury. Whether the income tax will ever disappear from our fiscal system remains to be seen. But one thing is sure—if it is not ended, it will be amended. It will not be left in its present jumbled and sectional form, whereby four-fifths of the income tax is paid by four states, and those states of the north. In other words, some time the income tax will be changed from its present form as a penalty upon thrift and enterprise and will be made a reasonable and universal contribution to the support of government.

It was something more than a century ago that this infant republic refused to pay tribute to the Barbary pirates, and Decatur and his comrades gave imperishable fame to the American navy in maintaining that refusal. Now, it seems, however, that we are to pay money to Carranza to be good. The fact that the transaction is designated as a loan does not alter its essential character.

The mobilization of the militia gave the country the hope that the period of "watchful waiting" was ended. But that pleasurable thought existed for a few days only. We are plainly in for another season of experimentation in Mexico, while the mobilized militia costs the country millions of dollars.

The surprising intelligence after things happen shown by the British in this war is again illustrated by the ease with which German submarine slips past the warships lying outside our ports.

Efforts are being made in some cities to teach children how to light from street cars. This would be wasted on many women friends who won't ride now in anything but automobiles.

The conservative citizen who would enjoy a Sunday automobile ride finds a period of about three hours beginning at 2 a. m. when the highways are comparatively free from joy-riders.

Those daisy chains the college girls carry for commencement please the farmers, who are glad to see what they call a weed picked out from their fields.

The pessimists say the July Fourth observance shows the decadence of patriotism, but just think how loud the rooters yell for the home ball team.

If congress proceeds to investigate the gasoline combine, they will no doubt get possession of all the facts that the office boys know.

A man is occasionally killed at the automobile races, but such trifling incidents do not ruffle the good nature of the crowd.

New York is again vindicating its claim to be the metropolis by having the worst epidemic of infant paralysis ever known.

Many families of soldiers will need aid, and they can get it if they live in doubtful congressional districts.

A suitable way to observe Fathers' day is for the kids to strike the old man for a bigger allowance.

To sit upon a witness.

The end seat hog had been climbed over, walked on and looked darkly at without effect, but when, at the junction of Frissey street and Kiddo avenue, a remarkably beautiful girl stepped onto the car and smiled at him, he rose gracefully, lifted his hat and bowed over nine inches so that she could squeeze in beside him.

"Very kind of you," she gurgled winningly.

"Not a tall. Not a tall," insisted the end seat hog. "Lookit, this guy running alongside the car!"

He alluded to Prescott Bubbles, who at that moment hopped aboard, puffing from his hard run.

"All right, Name, old dear," he panted. "Thanks, ever so."

"I'll do that little thing for you any time," said the fair passenger. And she arose and stepped off the car, and Prescott Bubbles and seat hog par excellence de luxe, plumped down into the end seat, smiled roguishly at the outmaneuvered end seat hog, and opened the Evening Blatt.

ROY K. MOULTON

LET THE SCIENTISTS GO HANG! The scientists inform us that there's danger lurking in the kiss. They've conjured up a kissing gauze that's to be worn by every miscreant. The gauze will keep the microbes from the spreading of grim disease. Not kissing microbes, so they say, will sting a feller just like bees. Though I have lived a lot, I've yet to see the feller old or young who walks on top of this old earth, who wouldn't just as soon be stung.

Them old professors don't seem able to give other folks a rest. They're always thinking up some scheme to knock Dan Cupid galley west.

Why don't they tend to their own business, doppel grammar out, and laws, instead of spoiling all our fun by boosting their new kissing gauze? If my Irene, the village queen, does mix up microbes with romance, they won't sell me no kissing screen—A good sport always takes a chance

PITY THE POOR MICROBE

It is announced that the University of California has received a donation of $1,000,000 from a rich man, the fund to be used in research work among the microbes. It may seem to the lay mind that nearly all of the possible microbes have been discovered already, but this is a common error. The scientists have never yet failed to come to the front with a new microbe when there seemed to be a demand for one. They began discovering them in large and diversified quantities about ten years ago and have been hard at it ever since. One of the first was the drinking cup microbe, but it is closely followed by the dollar-bill microbe, the door-handle microbe, the telephone microbe, the roller-towel microbe, the hand-shake microbe, the kiss microbe and enough others to fill seven columns of a newspaper printed in agate type.

It is sometimes a question how the forefathers worried along and did everything that they should not do and defied all these germs. With but very few advantages they lived to a ripe old age and the microbes were all about them as thick as mosquitoes in a New Jersey coast village. But now that the work of discovery has secured such a grand start it seems as though it should be pushed to a finish, if there is a finish.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Have you ever noticed how the ice-box everlastingly opens and the door from the outside is just eating up your good ice that you have paid for at exorbitant rates. We have an opinion upon this subject. We believe that the ice trust holds stock in the refrigerator factories and that every icebox is so made that at least one door will hang open.

Movie Actresses and Their Hair

Did it ever occur to you that every movie actress you have seen has lovely hair, while the most popular count their curls as their chief beauty? In fact, (this is a secret), many are leading ladies just because of their attractive locks. Inquiry among them discloses the fact that they bring out all the natural beauty of their hair by careful shampooing, not with any soap or makeshift, but with a simple mixture which they make up for themselves by putting a teaspoonful of canthox, (which they get from the druggist), in a cup of hot water and applying this instead of soap. After its use their hair dries rapidly, with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. The hair is so fluffy that it looks much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness is delightful, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.

since the death of her mother, would have her live. She takes advantage of every opportunity that offers for a lark, and frequently escapes from beneath the vigilant eye of her governess to romp about like a veritable tomboy. Judge Freeman and his daughter Lois, friends of the Staffords, also arrive in Palm Beach. Freeman, being attended by Dr. Royce, who becomes interested in Gloria, David Stafford finds much to interest him in Lois Freeman, and Richard Freneau, a young broker, scrapes an acquaintance with the Staffords and Freeman families and soon becomes David's rival. One night, Gloria, eluding her governess, goes for a long spin along the beach in her brother's new racing auto, loses control of the car and finds the machine dashing straight for the ocean. She succeeds in getting safely out of the motor, but loses her way when she attempts to return home at foot, and dawn finds her wandering in the Everglades. She is able to borrow a boy's suit of clothes when her own gown is torn and shabby and, thus dressed, is found by a band of Seminole Indians. Freneau, seeking her, finds that Dr. Royce has arrived ahead of him but while Royce is engaged in a hand to hand combat with a young Indian, Freneau bears Gloria to her father and is hailed as her rescuer. Gloria having been unconscious when Royce really saved her. Upon the return of the Staffords to New York, Freneau continues his attentions to Gloria, resulting in their engagement, while Royce finds himself a silent witness of their happiness. Later, Freneau mysteriously disappears and Gloria becomes suspicious that Royce had something to do with the vanishing of his rival. Mystery piles upon mystery as the plot develops and Gloria finds it wonderfully fascinating work to unravel one complication after another. How she eventually succeeds in solving the riddle, how she finds what really happened to Freneau and determines which man of the two is really worthy of her heart and hand, hold one spell-bound to the very end of "Gloria's Romance," which requires twenty feature chapters for its telling.

Edna Goodrich in "The Making of Maddalena."

"One of the pigments of life's color scheme—and pictures are made from ground pigments, you know. In the title from the story is summed up tersely the type of "Maddalena" that Edna Goodrich portrays in the Morosco-Paramount photoplay, "The Making of Maddalena." This is the attraction at the Apollo Theatre tomorrow.

Famous for her beauty, Miss Goodrich drops her American personality and appears on the screen as a true daughter of Italy in the warmth of her transformed beauty and in her sympathetic rendering of the role.

As the humble Italian whose beauty and grace wins her employment as an artist's model, Edna Goodrich is superb. Later as the anguished woman, who though risen to prominence and culture, suffers a heartrending separation from her child, Edna Goodrich acts with a strength and sincerity that scores a triumph.

"The Pace" is founded upon Miss King's recent transcontinental motor trip. Also in support of the two artists is Horace B. Carpenter, well-known character actor.

Miss Ottowa being "killed" by lion in movies.

The above photograph, showing a big, blood-thirsty lion about to eat up a very nice looking young woman, was taken recently during the rehearsal of a moving picture which may be entitled, "Love in the Jungle." Miss Ottowa is the fair "victim." She is an animal trainer and is assisting Capt. Jack Bonebrake in training this lion and other animals.

The training of a lion to be a moving picture star has many dangers, but Miss Ottowa is not afraid. She knows her animals well, and lying beneath the King of Beasts has no terrors for her. She is equally fearless in the presence of tigers, bears and leopards.

SYD AND CHARLES STILL BEST OF PALS.

To contradict the many reports regarding family differences, both Charles and Syd Chaplin have issued a formal denial that there has been any trouble between them. It was reported recently that they had come to the parting of the ways, and that their joint interests were terminated, once and for all. Syd Chaplin is negotiating with several concerns for the making of a series of comedy releases and, in the meantime, has banked $75,000 given him by his brother in appreciation of his services as business manager. Judging from their past records, the worst thing that could happen to the younger of the Chaplin family would be to lose the advice and business direction of his shrewder elder brother.

Dorothy Kelly, she of fame, is preparing to take the final plunge into the sea of matrimony. Miss Kelly displays a diamond ring of purest ray serene and modestly announces that Harvey Haveren, a New York real estate man, is the lucky individual. The date of the ceremony has not been fixed.

Jean Stuart, who is rapidly coming to the front as a screen actress, was formerly on the speaking stage, having appeared in support of John Mason in "As a Man Thinks." Miss Stuart is now writing scenarios as well as acting. Her first photoplay will be entitled, "As a Woman Thinks."

CHINA'S LATE PRESIDENT WANTS SONS AND DAUGHTERS TO RETURN TO HIS HOME

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Peking, July 25.—According to Yuan Shi-kai's deathbed request, his eldest son, Yuan Ko-ling, and his second and third sons, together with all the daughters and concubines of the lamented president, will return to his native village of Changteh in Honan province. The late president also requested that his fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh sons shall be sent to England to be educated under the direction of Yen Hsiu, former minister of education. His next four sons will be entrusted to Hsu Shih-chang, former secretary of state.

men of the late president offered sacrifices to the spirit of the deceased. Among the things sacrificed were paper launches, carriages, automobiles, and images of maid servants and man servants. And in order to quiet the departed soul of the late chief executive in the shades large numbers of Lamas and Taoists were enlisted to chant prayers in the presence of his remains. Telegrams from rulers of the various treaty powers expressing their condolences to the family of the late Chinese president were put in frames and hung up in front of Jui-jen-tang, where the coffin is lying in state. From morning to evening government officials in the metropolis offered their sacrifices and paid their respects by bowing down three times to the deceased without prostration.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—But, of Course, Mother Didn't Know

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Thirty-nine Steps

By JOHN BUCHAN

Author of "Prester John"

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Company

I stayed at my post till about 5 o'clock. By that time I had resolved to go down to Turnbull's cottage at nightfall and take my chance of getting over the hills in the darkness. But suddenly a new car came up the road and slowed down to stop a short distance from me. A fresh wind had risen, and the occupant wanted to light a cigarette.

It was a touring car with the tonneau full of an assortment of baggage. One man sat in it, and by an amazing chance I knew him. His name was Launcelot Brown, and he was an officer of creation. He was a sort of blood-sucker who did his business by robbing the roads of the rich and young peers and foolish old ladies.

"Launcelot" was a familiar figure. I understood, at balls and polo weeks and country houses. He was an adroit scoundrel and would crawl a mile on his belly to anything that had a title or a million. I had a business introduction to his firm when I came to London, and he was good enough to ask me to dinner at his club.

There he showed off at a great rate and pattered about his duchesses till the snobbery of the creature turned me sick. I asked a man afterward why nobody kicked him and was told that Englishmen revered the weaker sex.

Anyhow, there he was now, nattily dressed, in a fine new car, obviously on his way to visit some of his fine friends. A sudden daftness took me, and in a second I had jumped into the tonneau and had him by the shoulder.

"Hello, Brown!" I sang out. "Well met, my lad!"

He got a horrid fright. His chin dropped as he stared at me. "Who the devil are you?" he gasped.

"My name's Hannay," I said, "from Rhodesia, you remember."

"Good God—the murderer!" he choked.

"Just so. And there'll be a second murder, my dear, if you don't do as I bid you. Give me that coat of yours. That cap too."

He did as he was bid, for he was blind with terror. Over my dirty trousers and vulgar shirt I put on his smart driving coat, which buttoned high at the top and thereby hid the deficiencies of my collar.

I snuck the cap on my head and added his gloves to my getup. The dusty roadman in a minute was transformed into one of the nearest motorists in Scotland. On Mr. Launcelot Brown's head I clapped Turnbull's unspeakable hat and told him to keep it there.

Then with some difficulty I turned the car. My plan was to go back the road he had come, for the watchers, having seen it before, would let it pass unremarked.

"Now, my child," I said, "sit quite still and be a good boy. I mean you no harm. I'm only borrowing your car for an hour or two. But if you play me any tricks, and, above all, if you open your mouth, as sure as there's a God above me I'll wring your neck! Save?"

I enjoyed that evening's ride. We ran eight miles down the valley, through a village or two, and I could not help noticing several strange-looking folk lounging by the roadside.

These were the watchers who would have had much to say to me if I had come in other garb or company. As it was, they looked incuriously on. One touched his cap in salute, and I responded graciously.

As the dark fell I turned up a side glen which, as I remembered from the map, led into an unfrequented corner of the hills. Soon the villages were left behind, then the farms and then even the wretched cottages. Presently we came to a lovely moor, where the night was blackening the sunset gleam in the bog pools. Here we stopped, and I obligingly reversed the car and restored to Mr. Launcelot Brown his belongings.

"A thousand thanks," I said. "There's more use in you than I thought. Now, be off and find the police."

As I sat on the hillside watching the tail light dwindle I reflected on the various kinds of crime I had now sampled. Contrary to general belief, I was not a murderer, but I had become an unholier liar, a shameless impostor and a highwayman with a marked taste for expensive motorcars.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Bald Archeologist's Adventure.

I SPENT the night on a shelf of the hillside in the lee of a bowlder where the heather grew long and soft. It was a cold business, for I had neither coat nor waistcoat. Those were in Mr. Turnbull's keeping, as was Scudder's little book, my watch and, worst of all, my pipe and tobacco pouch. Only my money accompanied me in my belt and about half a pound of ginger biscuits in my trouser pocket.

I snuffed off half those biscuits and by warming myself deep into the heather got some kind of warmth.

My spirits had risen, and I was beginning to enjoy this crazy game of hide and seek. So far I had been miraculously lucky. The milkman, the literary innkeeper, Sir Harry, the roadman and the idiotic Launcelot were all pieces of undeserved good fortune.

Somewhat the first success gave me a feeling that I was going to pull the thing through.

My chief trouble was that I was desperately hungry. I lay and tortured myself—for the ginger biscuits merely emphasized the aching void—with the memory of all the good food I had thought so little of in London. There were Paddock's crisp sausages and fragrant shavings of bacon and shapely poached eggs—how often I had turned up my nose at them!

There were the curlicuts they did at the club, and a particular ham that stood on the cold table, for which my stout lusted. My thoughts hovered over all varieties of mortal edibles, and finally settled on a porterhouse steak and a quart of bitter with a Welsh rabbit to follow. In longing hopelessly for these dainties I fell asleep.

I woke very cold and stiff about an hour after dawn.

It took me a little while to remember where I was, for I had been very weary and had slept heavily. I saw first the pale blue sky through a net of heather, then a big shoulder of hill, and then my own boots placed neatly in a blackberry bush.

I raised myself on my arms and looked down into the valley, and that one look set me lacing up my boots in mad haste. For there were men below, not more than a quarter of a mile off, spaced out on the hillside like a fan, and beating the heather. Launcelot had not been slow in looking for his revenge.

I crawled out of my shelf into the cover of a bowlder and from it gained a shallow trench which slanted up the mountain face. This led me presently into the narrow gully of a burn, by way of which I scrambled to the top of the ridge. From there I looked back and saw that I was still undiscovered. My pursuers were patiently quartering the hillside and moving upward.

Keeping behind the sky line, I ran for maybe half a mile till I judged I was above the uppermost end of the glen. Then I showed myself and was instantly noted by one of the flankers, who passed the word to the others.

I heard cries coming up from below and saw that the line of search had changed its direction.

I pretended to retreat over the sky-line, but instead went back the way I had come, and in twenty minutes was behind the ridge overlooking my sleeping place. From that viewpoint I had the satisfaction of seeing the pursuit streaming up the hill at the top of the glen on a hopelessly false scent.

I had before me a choice of routes, and I chose a ridge which made an angle with the one I was on and so would soon put a deep glen between me and my enemies. The exercise had warmed my blood, and I was beginning to enjoy myself amazingly. As I went I breakfasted on the dusty remnants of the ginger biscuits.

I knew very little about the country, and I hadn't a notion what I was going to do. I trusted to the strength of my legs, but I knew well enough that those behind me would be familiar with the lie of the land and that my ignorance would be a heavy handicap.

I saw in front of me a sea of hills, rising very high toward the south, but northward breaking down into broad ridges which separated wide and shallow dales. The ridge I had chosen seemed to slant after a mile or two to a moor which lay like a pocket in the uplands.

That seemed as good a direction to take as any other.

My stratagem had given me a fair start—call it twenty minutes—and I had the width of a glen behind me before I saw the first heads of the pursuers. The police had evidently called in local talent to their aid, and the men I could see had the appearance of herds or gamekeepers.

They halted at the sight of me, and I waved my hand. Two dived into the glen and began to climb my ridge, while the others kept their own side of the hill. I felt as if I were taking part in a schoolboy game of hare and hounds.

But very soon it began to seem less of a game. Those fellows behind were hefty men on their native heath. Looking back I saw that only three were following direct, and I guessed that the others had fetched a circuit to cut me off.

My lack of local knowledge might very well be my undoing, and I resolved to get out of this tangle of glens to the pocket of moor I had seen from the tops. I must so increase my distance as to get clear away from them, and I believed I could do this if I could find the right ground for it. If there had been cover I would have tried a bit of stalking, but on these bare slopes you could see a fly a mile off.

My hope must be in the length of my legs and the soundness of my wind, but I needed easier ground for that, for I was not bred a mountaineer.

How I longed for a good Africander pony!

I put on a great spurt and got off my ridge and down into the moor before any figures appeared on the sky line behind me. I crossed a burn and came out on a highroad which made a pass between two glens.

All in front of me was a big field of heather sloping up to a crest which was crowned with an odd feather of trees.

In the dale by the roadside was a gate, from which a grass grown track led over the first wave of the moor. I jumped the dike and followed it, and after a few hundred yards—as soon as it was out of sight of the highway—the grass stopped and it became a very respectable road, which was evidently kept with some care.

Clearly it ran to a house, and I began to think of doing the same. Hitherto my luck had held, and it might be that my best chance would be found in this remote dwelling. Anyhow, there were trees there—and that meant cover.

I did not follow the road, but the burnside which flanked it on the right, where the bracken grew deep and the high banks made a tolerable screen. It was well I did so, for no sooner had I gained the hollow than, looking back, I saw the pursuit topping the ridge from which I had descended.

After that I did not look back. I had no time. I ran up the burnside, crawling over the open places and for a large part wading in the shallow stream. I found a deserted cottage with a row of fantom peat stacks and an overgrown garden.

Then I was among young hay and very soon had come to the edge of a plantation of wind-blown firs. From there I saw the chimneys of the house smoke a few hundred yards to my left.

I forsook the burnside, crossed an over dike and almost before I knew was on a rough lawn. A glance back told me that I was well out of sight of the pursuit, which had not yet passed the first lift of the moor.

The lawn was a very rough place, cut with a scythe instead of a mower, and planted with beds of scrubby rhododendrons. A brace of black game, which are not usually garden birds, rose at my approach. The house before me was the ordinary moorland kind, with a more pretentious white-washed wing added. Attached to this wing was a glass veranda, and through the glass I saw the face of an elderly gentleman meekly watching me.

I stalked over the border of coarse hill gravel and entered the open veranda door.

Within was a pleasant room, glass on one side and on the other a mass of books. More books showed in an inner room. On the floor, instead of tables, stood cases such as you see in a museum, filled with coins and queer stone implements. There was a kneehole desk in the middle, and seated at it, with some papers and open volumes before him, was the benevolent old gentleman. His face was round and shaly, like Mr. Pickwick's, big glasses stuck on the end of his nose, and the top of his head was as bright and bare as a glass bottle.

He never moved when I entered, but raised his placid eyebrows and waited on me to speak.

It was not an easy job, with about five minutes to spare, to tell a stranger who I was and what I wanted and to win his aid. I did not attempt it. There was something about the eye of the man before me—something so keen and knowledgeable—that I could not find a word. I simply stared at him and stuttered.

"You seem in a hurry, my friend," he said slowly.

I nodded toward the glass. It gave a prospect across the moor through a gap in the plantation and revealed certain figures half a mile off straggling through the heather.

"Ah, I see," he said and took up a pair of fieldglasses, through which he patiently scrutinized the figures.

"A fugitive from justice, eh? Well, we'll go into the matter at our leisure. Meantime I object to my privacy being broken in upon by the clumsy rural police. Go into my study and you will see two doors facing you. Take the one on the left and close it behind you. You will be perfectly safe. Don't leave until I send for you."

And this extraordinary man took up his pen again.

I did as I was bid and found myself in a little dark chamber which smelled of chemicals and was lit only by a tiny window high up in the wall. The door had swung behind me with a click like the door of a safe. Once again I had found an unexpected sanctuary, although I could not tell for how long.

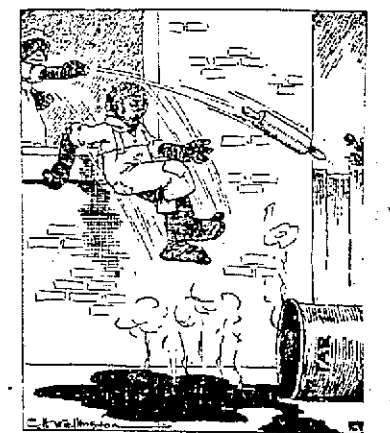

All the same, I was not comfortable. There was something about the old gentleman which puzzled and rather terrified me. He had been too easy and ready, almost as if he had expected me. And his eyes had been horribly intelligent.

No sound came to me in that dark place.

For all I knew the police might be searching the house, and if they did they would want to know what was behind this door. I tried to possess my soul in patience and to forget how hungry I was. Then I took a more cheerful view. But I was fearful that I was about to undergo some unusual experience.

Dinner Stories

An American lady at Stratford-on-Avon showed even more than the usual American fervor. She had not recovered when she reached the railway station, for she remarked to a friend as they walked on the platform: "To think that it was from this very platform the immortal bard

The superintendent of the Cincinnati zoo was making arrangements to feed the twenty-seven-foot python and needed men to hold the reptile during the repast. His advertisement was answered by a serious-looking negro. "What we want," said the zoo man,

"would depart whenever he journeyed to town."

TO SWIM FIVE MILES IN MISSISSIPPI RIVER
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
St. Louis, July 25.—Nearly a hundred swimmers will splash into the Mississippi river here today to paddle five miles in the annual five mile handicap of the Western Rowing club, one of the biggest outdoor aquatic events of the year in the middle west. Most of the swimmers represent local clubs.

Detroit fans are wondering if Ty Cobb will pull the speed this season that he's had in other years. I think there are a few who are certain that he's lost at least one step in getting down to first and that he has been thrown out on his last season that would have been said singles in season before. This sort of thing has many believe that he is not merely slow in rounding into form, but that he is beginning to slump. It must be remembered, however, that he is not the same man he looks a bit heavy and that he has not been going as best, though whether he is really falling behind it would be hard to say. The warm weather, however, will bring out his best class if it's to be brought.

Dillon's performance in beating Morale, who is so much heavier than himself, was so high that it was almost a thing of this sort was not so unusual. Joe Choymski fought nearly every heavyweight in the game and won. He weighed over 170. Joe was still in the ring with Jack Dawson as starting the game and he gave him Arthur his first k. o. in the third round of their fight many years ago at Galveston. He was a real another light boy who went after the other fighters. He could always make 160 pounds without great trouble and rat in the middle class and fought lots of heavyweights. He had to have something to do. McCoy was always very clever and he had a wonderful

While the average ball player reaching the big leagues seldom stays there longer than five seasons, there are some good dependable players who have never batted brilliantly nor won a great rep.—and Roy Hartzell of the New York Yanks is an example—who have been in fast company ten years. But these are great exceptions. And even greater exceptions are the stars who seem to shine forever. Matty and Erers and Wagner ten years ago were thought to be at the height of their careers.

"The first time I ever saw a professional ball team," said Jeff Tesreau, "was when the Browns came down to Fredericktown, Mo., to play an amateur team for which I pitched, in 1907. They beat us 26 to 6. Later, when I was in the International league, Joe Menger, formerly with the Browns and a very real rival, recognized me as the kid who had taken it against him, Louis that day. 'Do you know the renegade we hit you so hard?' he asked. 'No,' I replied. 'Why your catcher gave his signals without attempting to catch them, and they were plain as day to you.' He said he almost knew what to expect, and we were almost ashamed to beat you that way."

Vienna, July 25.—The latest son of the emperor, Prince Leopold, of Hungary, the heir to the throne was formally christened with great pomp at Schoenbrunn on June 8 and given the modest total of fifteen names to carry.

The young man probably will be called Felix for short, but officially is now Archduke Felix, Frederick August, Maria vom Siege, Francis Joseph, Peter, Karl, Anton, Robert, Otto, Ihus, Michael, Benedict, Sebastian, and Eugene Arcus d'Aviano.

His father or godfather was King Frederick August of Saxony, who made a special trip to Vienna from Dresden. As representative of the godmother, there officiated Countess Lucchesi-Saltori, princess of Parma. The solemn service in the Mass Theatre room of the palace at Schoenbrunn was conducted by Cardinal and Archduke Felix was brought in to the great room by the Countess Thun, with a train of Saxony following close behind. He lay strapped in silks, on a silken pillow quite contented as the formal questions and answers were spoken, and disturbed the ceremony not at all by crying.

The witnesses included the Emperor, Francis Joseph, but the baby's father, Francis Joseph, was absent in the field. He has not as yet seen his son.

FOR AUSTRALIA TODAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

San Francisco, July 25.—Accompanied by his fighting brigade, Jimmie Dima of New Castle, Pa., silver-haired, smoke-streaked and of pugilistic lights, set sail aboard the Sangua today for Australia, included in the party of pugilists were ex-champion of middleweight division, George Chip, Tom McMahon, Middleweight champion, Welterweight Johnny Riley, Lightweight Tommy Toubie, Featherweight Babe Placato, and Bantamweight Pat Brancato. For the service of the seven pugilists, Dima has been guaranteed $16,000, with the privilege of accepting 25 per cent of the gate receipts. The fighting brigade will remain in Australia for six months and will return to the United States about Christmas, probably via Shanghai, China, where several exhibition bouts will be staged. Chip is guaranteed $10,000 for the bout with the other boys $1,000 each for five bouts.

CHINESE PRESIDENT TRIES TO RECONCILE REBELLING FACTIONS

Wires Revolutionary Leaders in Attempt to Stamp Out Features Tearing Nation's Heartstrings.

Peking, July 25.—President Li Yuan-hung has appealed through personal programs for the co-operation of prominent revolutionary leaders in restoring peace and uniting the north and the south. Tang Shao-yi, formerly premier under Yuan Shih-kai, Kang Yu-wei, who inspired many reforms in Emperor Kuang Hsu was forced by the emperor to flee for his life in 1898, and Liang Chichao, the most famous disciple of Kang Yu-wei, are among the reformers Li Yuan-hung has asked to assist in the movement to bring about peace.

The following is a translation of a telegram which has been sent by the president to many influential revolutionists: "Heaven has afflicted China and disasters and disturbances have arrived in succession. On the 6th instant President Yuan Shih-kai died of illness, and I succeeded him the next day in accordance with the provisions made in the law of the country. At this time of political storm, there is an empty exchequer, and the country is exhausted. Being a man of little ability, I feel that I am unable to hold so great a responsibility. As you are men of profound learning, I hope that you will give me advice in all important state affairs."

Kang Yu-wei lived in America for many years after he was forced to leave China because the emperor would not place a price on his head. He also resided for some time in Japan. Liang Chichao also lived abroad for a long time, chiefly in Japan.

Efforts to get these leaders to Peking have been futile. They apparently have no intention of coming to the Chinese capital at this time. Consequently informal negotiations are in progress at Shanghai, and the Peking government hopes to arrange for more formal conference in that city preparatory to reconciling the north and the south.

China is chiefly divided into three sections politically at the present time. The four southernmost provinces are under the sway of Cantonese leaders. Tai An, who inaugurated the present revolution, is probably the best known leader in the four southernmost provinces, but he has remained constantly in Yunnan province, far west of Canton, and consequently has not participated in the deliberations at Canton.

Central China, or the Yangtze Valley country, is practically dominated by the military. General Feng Guohuang, at Kanking, and General Ni Shih-chung are the foremost leaders in that section.

CAVES CONCEAL GUNS; BIG AID TO ITALIANS

Particular Advantage to Artillerymen in Securing Better Place to Hide Mountain Cannon.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Headquarters of the Italian Army in Austria, July 24.—The use of caves as hiding places for cannon is one of the curious aids to artillery work in these mountains. Both Austrian and Italian artillery officers have exercised the greatest ingenuity in finding the proper caves for their cannon, since once well located the pieces are comparatively safe from discovery. The damage done on both sides by such hidden pieces has been severe.

On one occasion the correspondent of the Associated Press while near the Isonzo river witnessed an artillery duel between an Italian battery so hidden and three Austrian batteries which were seeking to protect the mouth of a canyon until an Austrian piece could be dragged into it. Several of the Italian regiments and those of the Austrians as well knocked off their daily business for a time to watch the duel.

The Austrians had for some days been attempting to plant a cannon in a cavern, the mouth of which was plainly visible from the Italian lines, but the Italian battery from its cavern on the opposite side of the Isonzo kept up such a hot fire day and night that the Austrians had not yet succeeded in their attempt. On this day of moving they had kept up a steady fire from several heavy guns on the Italian battery and under cover of this fire had almost dragged their piece, apparently one of 149 millimeter calibre, inside the cavern's mouth, a line of trenches having been thrown up to the mouth of the cavern to protect the soldiers dragging it.

As the piece was slowly turning inside the mouth of the cavern the Austrian troops set up a mighty roar, mocking the Italians, throwing their caps high into the air. The Austrian cannon also threw shell after shell across the intervening valley of the Isonzo, each shell exploding seemingly at the mouth of the cavern used by the Italian battery or else inside it. One series of shell shots from the Austrian 205 exploded almost every two minutes about the Italian's hiding place, wreathing it in a dense smoke. Just as the Austrian piece seemed at last to approach safety within the cavern, a shell from the Italian gun fell plump upon it, knocked it over and scattered the soldiers pulling on its ropes and shoving on its blocks.

FREAKISH NATURE GIVES BABY A TORTUS BUT
NO HANDS OR FEET

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Elvira, O., July 25.—Born without feet or hands, little Frances Campbell, 7, of Lorain, O., today is a new arrival at a local hospital for crippled children. Orthopedic physicians hope to equip the little girl with artificial legs so that she will be able in time to walk and use artificial hands in performing simple tasks.

Frances has short stubs at each limb socket. She hops and rolls around much to the amazement of nurses. It may take several years to train her to use of the artificial hands and legs.

MILLIONS OF CHIGGERS' LIVES THREATENED BY THIS ITEM

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Wooster, O., July 25.—Troubled with chiggers? Picnickers and others may prevent attack from this pest by dusting flowers of sulphur or naphthalene in their clothes, especially below the knees, according to an Ohio agricultural experiment station bulletin available today.

However, if one has not taken this protection, a hot bath immediately after exposure to the insects will counteract their effect.

After long exposure, a bath has no effect, the bulletin says, and infused oils of ammonia, common baking soda, or saleratus. A dilute solution of iodine or colloidion has also been found effective in many cases.

INSTANT UNLIMITED HOT WATER AT EVERY FAUCET

The sleep-producing hot-tub bath at night, always ready—the exhilarating “shower” in the morning, properly tempered—“just right” hot water for the massage—just a little for the toilet or shave and all time. “How,” you will ask, “can I have this comfort-making convenience in my home?” The answer is simple.

“GET A RUUD”

Instantaneous Automatic Water Heater. Attach it to the ordinary house piping and turn the faucet. No further attention is required. You forget that the Ruud is a part of your household, yet the hot water is there—all over the house—plenty for everybody. The bathroom becomes a place of utility as well as beauty. The kitchen and laundry work, especially where servants are concerned, goes on with less worry and friction and the whole family moves on a happier, more efficient basis. An apparatus that has so great a bearing on household comfort and convenience deserves your earnest attention. We will be glad to give you complete, detailed information and the cost of a proper size Ruud for your home. Just mail a postal today.

The Ruud is made in several types and sizes—for every purpose—for every purpose.
